GASPARILLA MUSIC FESTIVAL 2023

By Matt Bretz

Coming up on my third Gasparilla Music Festival I was super excited. Three of my favorite bands were playing in a row on the mainstage Saturday night. All I could think of, in the month long run up to the fest, was how sore my legs were gonna be from dancing my ass off in the middle of Curtis Hixon Park in downtown Tampa. Closing out the schedule Saturday was to be politically conscious hip hop duo Run the Jewels made up of rappers Killer Mike, who you may remember from his campaign speeches in support of Bernie Sanders, and EL-P, another heavy hitter where music and social justice meet. Funk-electro-rock group Chromeo, always dependably amazing, was set to shake it up like they do every single time. And Big Head Todd and the Monsters were going to play Bittersweet as the sun went down like I had been waiting for that the last twenty-something years. But none of that happened.

20 minutes before my dream lineup was about to start a huge storm rolled in and shut the place down for the rest of the night. There was nothing to be done. The sky crackled and groaned as the crowd funneled out onto the city sidewalks dispersing in every direction.

We found our way to a pub about 20 minutes down the road and spent the rest of the night playing Uno with the bartender and regulars. On that point, before I move on to the rest of the weekend, I want to give a big shout out to Tyler, Skyler and the rest of the gang Shamrockin' it up at Temple Terrace. Thanks for the memories!

There were a few change this year at the fest. For one thing, it was only two days long instead of three. In addition, the festival, which normally takes up Curtis Hixon as well as Kelly Gardens, was reduced to only the first half of that. To make up the organizers decided to place some of the stages along the river which was a nice add on for those that didn't have tickets. Other than that, it was pretty much business as usual; great food, cold beer, fantastic music and plenty of vendors ready to help you lighten your wallet. This is truly one of my favorite festivals of the year; it's small but relaxed, and they always pull just the right music I need to hear at the time.

Sunday (aptly named) brought the sun back out and even more people than the day before. Because of mother nature's mood on Saturday the organizers decided to honor everyone's tickets on Sunday even if they didn't buy the full weekend. By late afternoon the place was popping and the music was in 3rd gear - not quite up to speed but cruising along nicely. The bill was screaming lovefest as each band seemed to be handpicked for their indie organic styles. Concert goers came dressed in tie-dye shirts ready to morph into dancing bears by the time the sun went down. Kind of reminded me of my first few Bonnaros when hippies still ran the show. The Tampa Metro Youth Orchestra made a showing this year again, feels like tradition now. After that George Pennington & The Odyssey killed their slot and things got a little hotter. Shevonne & The Force, Minim and Cope all made good showings. By 3 pm, or so, The 502s went hard. This was definitely one of my favorite discoveries of the fest. Rising Appalachia was right there with them too. Try hard to find a funkier more organic vibe than what these people are producing right in front of you; you can't. Local Natives were a big favorite of the day. They have had quite a run lately making it into movies and a couple radio hits. They are for sure one the new indie groups launching into space.

The last band of the night - the headliner - was Joe Russo's Almost Dead. So, this is a Grateful Dead cover band in every sense. They don't play the songs verbatim because it's the Dead and even they didn't play their own songs verbatim - ever. These guys are some of the best musicians I have seen. You can tell each one was handpicked for their specialty. Every song was probably 10 minutes long on average - jam band style - and it was friggin' glorious. Usually my feet are sore from walking around huge festivals, but not at this one. This one my feet were sore from dancing the night away... like a bear. Thanks for having us Gasparilla - can't wait to do it again next year.

More Ways to Waste Chat GTP And Penne

I'm sure by now many of you have heard about the bizarre story about the 500 pounds of pasta that was found laying around on a river bed in Old Bridge, New Jersey. Just Google "Oodles of Noodles" to find out about it. Basically, as it turns out, a guy was cleaning out his mother's house who had passed away. He was going to sell the house. In that house, his mother left behind a stockpile of pasta. Apparently, he wasn't very hungry, so he decided to dump it by the riverbed. As the weather was kind of rainy, the pasta looked as if it was cooked, however it was just from being wet. My question is, why wasn't the pasta in boxes? Did he dump it out of the boxes? What did he do with the boxes? Does anybody really keep 50 pounds of loose pasta laying around? Well, maybe my grandmother for Sunday dinner with the family. Anyway, the pasta was a mix of spaghetti, elbows, and alphabet types. What, no penne? What kind of pastamaniac was this? So being the weirdo I am, I started pondering penne. This is a great excuse to put the super-brain known as Chat GPT to use. Now, Chat GPT already thinks I'm a complete moron by asking stupid questions that I think it can't answer. Well, let's see what Chat GPT knows about the succulent cylinders known as penne!

As any good Italian cook knows, it really take about 2-3 gallons of water to cook a pound of penne. You don't want to crowd the pot. So the first thing I asked is how much water gets absorbed into the pasta when cooked in 3 gallons of water. Apparently, that was an easy one for Chat GPT. It did all the math and figured out that 1 pound of pasta would absorb between .48 -.74 gallons of water. Great, now we're getting somewhere! And Chat GPT didn't call me a moron or anything... yet.

When we were growing up, we had an above ground pool. The pool was 4 feet high, about 15 feet in diameter, and contained 14,000 gallons of water. See where I'm going here? So I asked how much penne would it take to soak up all the water in a 14,000 gallon pool. Again, this was fairly easy for Chat GPT as it spit out the calculations. It would take 116,760 1 lb. boxes of penne to soak up all the water. Ok, that wasn't too bad, and I wasn't called any names yet! Well, we'll fix that.

So, wiseguy AI thingy, how many pounds of penne would it take to soak up all the water in lake Okeechobee? It didn't like that question! Chat GPT gives me a snide answer. Being that the lake is one of the largest freshwater lakes in the country, takes up about 730 square miles, is about 9 feet deep, and contains 1.1 trillion gallons of water, blah, blah, blah. Then it says "In conclusion, it is not feasible for any amount of penne or other solid substance to soak up all the water in Lake Okeechobee." Ok, I have to approach this in a new way. So, I ask it, hypothetically, if each piece of penne absorbs about .45 gallons of water, how much penne would it take to suck up Lake Okeechobee? Now I can do the math in my head, but want to see if wise guy AI can figure it out. Well, of course it can. It would take 1,466,666,667,000 pieces of penne to soak up all the water. For those who are counting, that's 917 million pounds of tubular goodness if each one weighs about 0.01 ounces. It then reminds me that this is totally hypothetical and is not really viable. Oh, yea? Next time I go to Publix I'll see how much penne they have!

Using the same logic as the last question I ask the arrogant AI: How much penne would it take to evaporate the Atlantic Ocean? Now I got you! But noooo.... After explaining to me that the Atlantic Ocean is about 321 cubic miles and contains approximately 332.5 QUINTRILION gallons of water (I didn't know that), it would take an impossible amount of penne to soak up all its water. Impossible amount of penne? What's that? Well, then it snarkily tells me that if there were enough penne in the world, it would take about 665 quintillion pieces of penne to accomplish this feat. That's 625 trillion pounds! Might have to go to Sam's Club for that. By the way, a quintillion is a 1 followed by 18 zeros. So, yes, Chat GPT is telling me once again, that's really not possible, but for a moron like you, here are the calculations. You're assuming that there isn't 625 trillion pounds of penne in the whole world. Well, maybe you should have been at my grandmother's house for Sunday dinner!

ALTER EGO

By Steve LeClair

If you're a fan of Alter Ego, you surely can be both, shy/reserved/grounded and what the band followers call themselves: Ego Maniacs! Chances are that shell would be left at home, and you'd be dancing and partying the night away to the sounds of this great band.

The roots of the band had its beginning playing in different church bands and branched out from there. Their choice of music is spread out over several genres but carries the emphasis on dance and 'sing along' songs. Joan Jett, Heart, AC/DC, B-52's, Radiohead... and lots more!

Emily Franz is the lead vocalist, plays some harmonica and lends percussion. She started singing before she could talk and was influenced by her sister who sang in beauty pageants and soon she followed in those footsteps. She performed as a young girl in her first band, Pink Ice, consisting of just two girls singing at local fairs and community events. At 7, she landed her debut role at the Cocoa Village Playhouse portraying "Baby June" in the musical Gypsy and fell in love with the theater. She continued the next 11 years performing and participating in the STARS of Tomorrow program which she thanks her mother and father for the countless rides across the bridge! Her high school choir director encouraged her to continue her education in music, and after high school she went to Eastern Florida State College as a voice major singing opera. That's a lot different from what you'll hear her sing now, but it was crucial in her development. Outside of music, Emily works at Blue Origin as a Materials and Process Technician. Alter Ego is a family that chose to be together, and she wouldn't change it for the world. Fun fact: Emily never wears shoes when she performs, check out the Alter Ego branded rug she stands on.

Paul Johnson plays Lead/Rhythm Guitar, adds Vocals along with Percussion. Paul grew up in Colorado on 80's and 90's music mostly. Between July 1980 and February 1981, 2 albums were released that changed his musical life: AC/DC – Back in Black and RUSH – Moving Pictures. After that, he knew he had to play. His first instrument was a Ludwig Drum Set... double bass of course. Fun fact: he played drums in the first 2 bands that he was in. He got his first guitar (a black Charvel Charvette and Gorilla amp) for his 20th birthday as a present from his lovely wife. Always a good thing to have support from your partner! This was the time of Grunge... which still is some of his favorite music and includes Alice In Chains in particular. He got through that very challenging "learning" phase of guitar with some help of a couple of buddies while serving in the Navy. While on his second ship, he joined the first band he played guitar in. He's quite an accomplished musician today, playing guitar, bass and drums fluently and dabbling in piano and keyboards. He said some of his my biggest guitar influences are Angus, SRV, Jerry Cantrell and Alex Lifeson. He's work at L3 Harris and between the Navy and Harris he's been to about 40 countries over 5 continents. Some of his hobbies are skiing in the winter, wake boarding in the summer, and he still plays ice hockey! He originally met bass player Scott through coaching Lacrosse.

Zach Savary plays Lead/Rhythm Guitar, and adds Vocals. He is a Brevard native with music in his blood. Both of his parents are talented musicians, mom playing the flute and saxophone and dad playing the drums. His musical journey started young when he picked up the clarinet, later transitioning to trumpet before finding his true passion with the guitar in middle school. "I draw inspiration from rock legends such as Billy Gibbons, Carlos Santana, and Slash." His love for rock music was ignited when he first heard his dad playing Sweet Child o' Mine on a small electric drum set. That moment served as a catalyst and he's been hooked on rock ever since. Outside of music, he works as a manufacturing engineer at Embraer Executive Jets. He joked, "I have a deep love for anything that makes noise, from airplanes and cars to racing and beyond!"

Scott Sutherland plays Bass Guitar. Unlike the other members of Alter Ego, Scott did not start playing an instrument until well into his 40's. Growing up in Florida, he was a fan of country music and southern rock. In the 90's - grunge! His dream gig would be something straight out of MTV's series "Unplugged" complete with candles, flannel shirts and an acoustic bass guitar! Later in life he became a fan of contemporary Christian music and that is where he got his start playing drums, guitar, bass and singing with his wonderful wife and friends in the church band. If it was up to Scott, Alter Ego would be a grunge band! Scott proudly served in the Air Force for 10 years and was stationed overseas for a majority of that time. He has been a teacher with Brevard County Schools for close to three decades. He has four children, three grandchildren and the worst case of gear acquisition syndrome (a.k.a. GAS - the desire to buy musical equipment even if you don't need it) of anyone in the band!

Drummer Jimmy Savary is a Brevard county native, born at the Cape Canaveral Hospital! His mom passed her love of music to him. From an early age he can remember the family console stereo with a turntable and 8 tack player with his mom dancing and singing to 50's, 60's, and 70's rock and country. "I learned a few different instruments in school and started playing the drums in middle school, and eventually in high school in the marching band. I moved to East Tennessee with my mom and was part of the marching band at the local high school. We were invited to march in the Cotton Bowl parade in Dallas, TX on a freezing cold January day. Later that same year President Reagan came to our little town and our band played Hail to the Chief as he made his way to the stage." Eventually he moved back to Brevard and married his beautiful wife. A big music fan he loves all types of music, with grunge and hair bands being some of his favorites. He passed his love of music to his sons. The origins of Alter Ego started when his son Zach formed a praise band. He eventually joined in, playing the drums and occasionally the bass guitar and it was around that time that they met Scott and Paul. The four of them jammed together at church and their homes and eventually decided to find a singer to join. The first time Emily came to practice, they all knew she was the one to vocally lead the band.

Don Tasker adds Trumpet, Percussion, Keyboard/Synthesizer, and Vocals. He grew up just outside of Atlanta, Georgia, where he got his start in Band/Orchestra. He toured the U.S. for a year with the Spirit of Atlanta Drum and Bugle Corps where he was the "corps baby" for the 1990-1991 touring season. That tour interested Don in a career in Music Education and provided motivation to be recognized as an All-State performer and receive scholarship offers from multiple universities for trumpet performance. He chose the University of Georgia Redcoat Band. Fun fact: Don is featured on the Redcoat Band's Gameday album still sold in the bookstore on campus today. Then he went into the Navy where he served as a bugler and parade trumpeter before having to refocus on his primary career field, and the completion of his college education. After eventually graduating from the University of South Carolina, Don switched to the Air Force and completed his 23-year military career in 2016. This is when he moved to Florida. Don currently works for Covalus, LLC, as a Senior Program Manager, consulting on various healthcare construction projects. His eclectic musical influences include UB40, US3, Brian Setzer, and Queen among others. However, if you catch him in a karaoke show, which became an interest during the three years he lived in Tokyo, you're likely to hear some country, rock, grunge, pop, or rap, as his musical interests run very wide. As a friend of the Alter Ego family, Don was asked to pick back up the trumpet after a couple of decades lay off to augment the band for the song Wine, Beer, Whiskey. The rust was knocked off, that song was a hit with the Ego-Maniacs, and momentum picked up to join on other trumpet-friendly tunes. By 2022, Don had parts in more than 40 songs on trumpet, synthesizer, vocal, and percussion, and was invited as a full member of Alter Ego. The band is expanding it's venues and events constantly, so you might catch them at a club or see them on a large stage but either way, you won't want to miss an Alter Ego show

You won't want to miss an Alter Ego show. These great musicians will make sure you become an Ego-Maniac by the time the night is over! Find them on Facebook or at alterego321.com.

ELLIE LEE

Winner of numerous awards, Ellie is a blues guitarist/singer/songwriter that fronts the band with her soulful voice, ripping guitar solos and her obvious joy in performing. Ellie's guitar virtuosity has been compared to Jeff Beck, Albert King and Jimi Hendrix just to name a few.

30 Years of Bringing Concerts and Shows to Brevard County

Live music is making a comeback. After 3 very scarce years, venues are filling back up and bands are touring on a larger scale once again. Have you ever thought about the promoters behind the scenes? The people who bring the shows to town? Brevard Music Group founder Roland Guilarte has done exactly that for the last 30 years. Brevard Live spoke to him about his rich history in the county and what lies ahead.

“Music is my life’s passion,” so it says on Guilarte’s BrevardMusicGroup.com website. Simply referred to “Roland” by his family and friends, one quickly gets the sense that his words are more than just a catchy quote on a screen. In fact, he has been living music since 1985. First as the owner of Record Hut in Rockledge, then as a concert promoter in Merritt Island. “There was a jazz guitarist playing in Orlando,” Roland recalls. “My wife at the time suggested that we bring him to Brevard for a show. That’s how Brevard Music Group started.”

The gig, held at Screech McVeighs inside of a Holiday Inn, would be the beginning of something big. Not that Record Hut didn’t have its fair share of memories. “We were a Ticketmaster outlet back when the only way you could buy tickets were in person,” he continues. “From 600 people camping outside for days for Paul McCartney to over a thousand in line for Garth Brooks, his 3-year tenure in the record shop business from 1993 to 1996 was beneficial of what was to come.

“I have done shows at every major venue in Brevard County,” he reminisces. “Holiday Inn, Hilton Ballroom. Even did a show at the old Power Station. The sound board started smoking during that show.” For those unfamiliar how it works, a talent buyer works with the artist or artist’s agent to bring them to town. They usually rent out the venue, is in charge of selling tickets and pays the artist the amount previously agreed upon. Roland has fond memories of working with artists multiple times and forming a loyal bond each time they came back.

It wasn’t easy. It was 1994 and as he puts it, he could ‘barely keep it going’. That is until King Center director Steve Janicki took him under his wing. “He really showed me how to properly book shows,” he remembers. Not only was Roland able to learn, but also started doing shows himself to this day, in both the Studio Theatre and main concert hall.

There is a complete list of concerts that he has put on over the 30-year history as Brevard Music Group. Jazz greats Pat Metheny, Maynard Ferguson, Dave Koz, rock guitarist Johnny Winters, Hall & Oates. The list really does go on and on.

He announced last month that in 2024 he’ll be stepping down as the face and main promoter of Brevard Music Group. “My position at BMG shifts to more of a behind-the-scenes programming and marketing role,” in a statement published in the May issue of Brevard Live. He also announced that the company will rebrand as BMG Concerts.

To commemorate the change, and accomplishments of BMG, he will bring a very special jazz concert to the King Center Studio Theatre on June 10th with renowned saxophonists Michael Lington and Paul Taylor. Other announced shows concerts include Acoustic Alchemy at the Studio Theatre and Pat Travers at The Tangiers in Palm Bay. At press time, Roland was set to announce a partnership with FIT to run shows at the Gleason Center. Hardly a retirement tour for someone who will be slowing down.

There are still many things that Roland Guilarte wants to do. Spend time with family and friends. Spend more time on the water (he lives on his boat) albeit in a different docking community later this year. “It’s a different ballgame now”, he admits. “It has been difficult to maneuver in the music business.” Citing less loyalty of artists in working with the same promoter each time they come to town, to the increase of ticket prices to account for free downloads. He still is optimistic of the future. “I’m looking for someone to come on board, probably part-time to help and learn the business.” No one is saying that the transition to behind the scenes will be easy. “It truly is an addiction”, he says of the music business. “People crash and burn if you’re not able to find a balance. This journey has been surreal.”

Rigg's Outpost FISHING REPORT JUNE FORECAST

By Captain Pompano Rich

Conjuring up a perfect vacation spot. Does a Bermuda Blue ocean and sandy beaches sound appealing? Perhaps scouting historical beaches. Visiting an iconic inlet and state park. Just perusing a natural estuary with our islands and an coastline. Choose Brevard as your June V-cay. Consistent breezy days at an affordable destination.

Of course my job is to describe the fishing, 65 years fishing coastal Florida, I always find my way to Sebastian Inlet. It's time to catch snook. Lots of line siders. Terminology used by striped bass fisherman. June and July snook harbor the Sebastian Inlet to spawn. With the estuary being rich in nutrients it's the perfect location. There are legal slots and regulations on snook. Rigg's Outpost has a free guide.

They range from 5 to 30 lbs and are plentiful. A mid size spinning combo with 40 lb braid is the ticket. Top water chuggers, Xwraps and flare tail hawks {3-5 ounce nylon feather with a lateral bloodline to mime an injured bait}. Pre Sunrise and early evening are the best. Full moons make for the best nocturnal fishing in the region.

To maximize your success stop in at Rigg's outpost. Captain Matt Burr, our resident Fishing Guide, manages Rigg's and has lived in Brevard all of his life. He can help you make the right decisions. Plus as the owner of Momma B's Charter service he is up for hire.

Rigg's is the culmination of the owner Anthony Marks experience in tackle, bait and boat rental business. Across the street is a fleet of rental boats and pontoons. These crafts are clean, comfortable and have new engines.

The estuary is yours to scout and fish the rich natural shorelines. June is redfish, trout and jack crevalle time. My favorite is to find the small beaches in between lush mangrove shorelines and pitch plugs at these locations. The number one thing to look for are schools of large black mullet. Mullet eat algae off the bottom. They kick up shrimp and crustacea that bigger fish eat. On calm days they will be easy to spot and cast lures at. On windy days cut mullet or a chunk of fresh lady fish is killer!

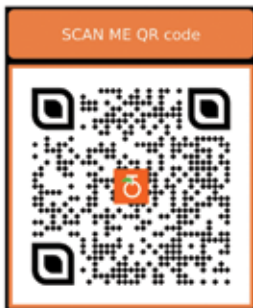

Whiting and black drum will be prevalent in the surf breaks and short bars. Light tackle and simple terminal rigs are at Rigg's. Purchase fresh shrimp and the best synthetic strips available. Cut a half inch piece of Fishgum to triple your catches. Once on our beach roads, travel south past Indialantic, past some low rise townhouses, and you can choose numerous beaches to fish with very few people.
